Geneva Awarded GSA’s Multiple Award Schedule for Support of Military Medical Research

TACOMA, Wash. – The Geneva Foundation (Geneva), a 501(c)3 non-profit that provides innovative scientific research and exceptional program management, announces today the award of GSA Schedule (Contract No. 47QRAA21D009K) under the Multiple Award Schedule (MAS) from the General Services Administration (GSA) to further advance military medical research. Geneva’s government-wide MAS contract has an award period of 20 years.

Federal, state, and local government buyers now have direct access to Geneva’s technical and program management services through GSA Advantage!®. According to GSA, the MAS offers regulatory compliance, fair and reasonable pricing, fast order placement, and full product and broad service offerings. The MAS contract award comes after GSA conducted an extensive review of Geneva’s performance, abilities, and history to ensure that Geneva provides effective and efficiently priced services to the government.

“We are grateful for this award because it provides another contract vehicle for agencies to access our services, allowing us to connect with federal buyers quickly and easily,” said Geneva’s President and CEO Elise Huszar, MBA.

“This is a testament to the hard work, dedication, and quality service our employees provide to support our clients’ missions, and we look forward to continuing this work,” she added.

As a result of meeting the rigorous standards, government agencies can now leverage Geneva’s services under Special Item Numbers 541715 (Engineering Research and Development and Strategic Planning) and OLM (Order-Level Materials).

Geneva’s proven capabilities include the delivery of a full-spectrum of scientific, technical, and program management expertise in the areas of federal contracts, federal grants, and industry-sponsored clinical trials.
